

WHAT IS THE CEEP FELLOWSHIP?

The CEEP fellowship is a 28-week leadership program for currently enrolled college students. CEEP Fellows organize a variety of direct engagement events to register their peers to vote, help students navigate voting rules, distribute educational materials like our nonpartisan candidate guides and organize get-out-the-vote events. Fellows also work on projects to institutionalize voter engagement efforts on their campus, such as building a permanent coalition dedicated to student voter engagement, working to locate a polling place on campus or having Election Day marked as a campus holiday.

What Does the Fellowship Entail?

The fellowship is designed for students of all ages with an interest in engaging their peers. Fellows organize a variety of direct engagement events focusing on institutionalizing voter engagement efforts on their campus. Activities include, but are not limited to, voter registration, voter education and getting out the vote. Fellows are required to do:

- 1 institutional project
- 4 engagement events

To help Fellows plan and execute their work, CEEP provides trainings and numerous resources surrounding voter engagement and community organizing. These topics include:

- Voter Engagement 101
- Best Practices in Voter Engagement
- Get Out the Vote
- Creating Civil Dialogue
- Digital Organizing
- Coalition Building
- Local Elections
- Institutional Projects
- How Elections Work: Facilitating a Mock Election

What Have Fellows Accomplished?

Fellows have big and exciting imaginations when it comes to election engagement. Fellows seek to permanently change campus culture in favor of election engagement through institutional projects. Here are things Fellows have accomplished:

- CEEP Fellow Alexandria Simms at The Chicago School of Professional Psychology to create a Canvas Course shell for the “Democracy Challenge.” The shell shows up as a “course” for all students enrolled at the institution and includes voter registration information for Illinois, Wisconsin and Michigan. It has also integrated CEEP’s Vote.org tools, nonpartisan presidential guide, videos and much more.
- CEEP Fellows at a number of schools—including Bowling Green State University and Central Michigan University—have been successful in drafting syllabus language about voter engagement to give to faculty to include in their syllabuses.

Travis Waters, a student at Florida State University, proposed a change to the FSU student ID card to add student signatures. Previously, the signature hadn't been on the card, which meant that it was not an acceptable identification that students could use to cast their ballot. Travis finally received the green light from FSU's President to approve this change. New student ID cards have been updated with the signature.
